

MOZAICO BESPOKE

The Art of Hand-Cut Stone for Defining Spaces

Beyond the Catalog

While our curated collection serves as inspiration, our true distinction lies in collaborative creation. At Mozaico, we transcend the conventional boundaries of stone supply to become your bespoke design partner—transforming architectural visions into tangible permanence through the ancient art of hand-cut natural stone.

Every commission begins with your vision. Our master artisans in Lebanon—craftspeople whose lineage spans generations—work with hand-cut natural stone and Venetian enamels, cutting each tessera by hand to achieve the subtlety and precision that machine fabrication cannot replicate. This dedication to heritage techniques ensures that every installation possesses the depth, variation, and soul that only human touch can impart.

Our palette knows no limitation. From rare Italian Calacatta to Turkish travertine to vibrant Venetian Smalti and gold-leaf glass, from Lebanese marble to semi-precious stones, we source globally to realize your exact chromatic and material specifications. This unlimited color vocabulary allows us to match existing palettes, create dramatic contrasts, or develop entirely bespoke chromatic narratives that become inseparable from the architecture itself.

Heritage Craftsmanship

Techniques refined across centuries, executed by master artisans whose expertise ensures each piece becomes an heirloom-quality installation worthy of preservation.

Unlimited Material Palette

Global stone sourcing capabilities provide access to rare marbles, semi-precious materials, and specialty stones that expand design possibilities infinitely.

Collaborative Design Process

We translate your sketches, CAD drawings, or conceptual imagery into refined digital renderings before a single stone is cut—ensuring alignment at every phase.

Defining Hospitality

The threshold between exterior and interior establishes immediate expectations. In hospitality architecture, this transition demands work of consequence—installations that communicate permanence, luxury, and meticulous attention to the guest experience. Our large-scale commissions transform lobbies, casino entryways, and public circulation spaces into destinations unto themselves.

Grand medallions spanning twenty feet or more become the architectural anchor of a space, orchestrating circulation patterns while providing visual drama that photography cannot diminish. Geometric hallway compositions guide movement through properties with subtlety and sophistication. These installations endure not merely through material durability—though natural stone withstands decades of foot traffic without degradation—but through timeless design that transcends trend cycles.

We engineer each commission for the realities of commercial environments. Slip-resistance specifications, threshold transitions, and substrate compatibility are considered from initial concept. Installations arrive mesh-mounted in manageable sections with comprehensive layout diagrams, enabling efficient field installation while maintaining design integrity across expansive areas. The result: statement flooring that establishes character and withstands the demands of high-traffic hospitality environments for generations.

Aquatic Artistry

Water amplifies everything it touches—color intensifies, light refracts, and material character reveals itself completely. Custom mosaic installations in aquatic environments transcend decoration to become immersive experiences, transforming functional pool bottoms and spa walls into narrative environments that reward extended contemplation.

Spa Feature Walls

Vertical compositions create meditative focal points in wellness spaces, with gradients and organic patterns that complement the restorative nature of the environment.

Chromatic Gradients

Subtle color transitions create depth perception, making pools appear deeper or shallower through precise stone selection and strategic placement of tonality.

Marine Narratives

Representational compositions featuring sea turtles, coral formations, or abstract oceanic patterns transform pools into destination experiences rather than amenities.

The inherent resistance of our natural stone and Venetian glass to chlorine, salt water, and pH fluctuations ensures chromatic stability and structural integrity across decades of submersion. Unlike printed or glazed alternatives that fade or delaminate, hand-cut mosaics maintain their brilliance indefinitely. We frequently incorporate high-gloss glass elements to capture light refraction underwater, creating a shimmering depth that matte stone alone cannot achieve. Our artisans work for this optical interplay during design development, ensuring that underwater installations appear precisely as intended when viewed from deck level. This technical consideration, combined with artistic vision, produces aquatic environments that become the defining amenity of resort, residential, and wellness properties.

Converting Image to Stone

The pinnacle of our craft lies in figurative work—translating photographs, historical paintings, or original artwork into permanent stone compositions that capture not merely likeness, but presence. This capability represents the intersection of artistic interpretation and technical mastery, requiring both intimate material knowledge and profound understanding of light, shadow, and human perception.

Portraiture demands particular attention to the subtleties that convey personality—the catch-light in an eye, the gradient across a cheekbone, the texture of hair rendered through strategic material selection. Our artisans work from high-resolution imagery, selecting from hundreds of stone varieties to achieve the tonal range necessary for authentic representation. Tessera size varies across the composition, with smaller pieces deployed in areas requiring greater detail and larger stones establishing broader planes.

These commissions transcend contemporary framing or printing to become generational heirlooms. Family portraits installed in private residences, founder imagery in corporate headquarters, or historical figures in institutional settings gain permanence and gravitas through stone interpretation. The medium itself communicates values—longevity, investment in quality, respect for legacy. Whether commemorating individuals, recreating masterworks from museum collections, or developing original figurative compositions, we approach each commission with the reverence it demands, ensuring that the resulting installation honors both subject and setting for centuries to come.

A Seamless Collaboration

Bespoke fabrication requires clarity, communication, and trust. Our process removes uncertainty from custom commissions through structured phases that maintain your creative control while leveraging our technical expertise and fabrication capabilities.

01

Concept Submission

Share your vision through sketches, CAD drawings, photographs, or conceptual imagery. We discuss scale, material preferences, installation context, and timeline requirements to establish project parameters.

02

Digital Rendering

Our design team develops detailed digital mockups showing exact placement, chromatic selections, and how the composition integrates within the architectural context. Revisions continue until alignment is achieved.

03

Artisan Fabrication

Hand-cutting begins in our Lebanese studio. Master craftspeople work from approved renderings, selecting individual stones for optimal color, veining, and character. Progress documentation available upon request.

04

Delivery & Installation

Finished mosaics arrive mesh-mounted in numbered sections with comprehensive layout diagrams. This system enables efficient installation by your team while ensuring design integrity across the complete composition.

Lead times vary based on complexity and scale, typically ranging from eight to sixteen weeks from rendering approval to shipment. We maintain communication throughout fabrication, providing milestone updates and addressing any field conditions that emerge during your construction timeline. This collaborative approach has enabled successful installations in projects spanning six continents, from boutique residential commissions to hospitality properties requiring coordinated multi-phase delivery schedules.

Let's Create Together

Every significant project begins with conversation. We invite established design professionals and development firms to submit current project specifications for complimentary consultation. Our team reviews architectural context, design intent, and technical requirements to develop preliminary concepts and fabrication recommendations tailored to your specific commission.

Trade Program membership provides priority fabrication scheduling, dedicated account management, and access to our complete material library including specialty stones not featured in standard collections. Whether you're developing a singular statement installation or require ongoing partnership across multiple projects, we're equipped to support your vision with the craft it deserves.
